

December 2018

As a "mid-quarter" month, I would normally be having a month off not saying anything, but there are a few things

Almost all of this month's changes are of little consequence, unless you use a lot of ivabradine 2.5mg which has come down for 28 tablets. On the other hand, the slow-release formulations of diclofenac have come down by around 20% for 56 and 100mg by 26% to £5.95 (28).

However, the main reason for writing is that November's price concessions have ticked up to their highest level multiple.

68 lines include substantial concessions such as 5-fold increases in the prices of furosemide 40mg tablets, naproxen and ramipril tablets. But above all, note that risperidone 2,3 and 4mg tablets will be priced at 8-16 times their Drug gs of note... is gone up more than 50% to £66.65 : 75mg by just over that to £8.96 for l for a while, both in number and roxen 500mg tablets and almost all Tariff price.
