

March 2018
Category A and C price changes only before the next major quarterly update. Only one of note: aripiprazole 30mg tablets down 9% to 11.08
3 price concession communications for February (last of which was on 9/3/18) resulting in a total of 69 lines for that month.
February 2018
While there are numerous Category A and C price changes, only one of significance: The generic description for Symbicort Turbohaler / Fobumix / Duoresp DPIs is down by £10 to £28 (both strengths)
After 3 separate and rather late communications, the latest being the 9th February, 68 lines became the subject of price concessions for January.
January 2018
The usual quarterly change of Category M prices...
An interesting set of changes to these: large increases in many of those which have been subject to price concessions in the last quarter so the effect of concessions is much reduced but these are now reflected in higher baseline costs. On the other hand, there is still downward pressure on lines which have not been the subject of price concessions with a number of such lines now very economically priced in the range 50-80p.
The overall effect is an increase in Category M costs of just under 7.5%.
Lines (included here) for which price concessions have been granted in December are highlighted orange. Price concessions were eventually granted for 86 (14%) of Category M lines last month.
Some significant changes are highlighted yellow.
Significant price increases:
Quetiapine is this quarter's biggest riser. Other price concession lines are also well up.
Co-amilofruse tablets have risen significantly moving Category M to A.
Anticipated savings from pregabalin have reduced slightly with increases to its Category M price.
Significant price decreases:
The largest fall is 90% for that concoction of emulsifying and liquid paraffin ointments mixed 50:50.
Other falls are associated with drugs entering Category M e.g. losartan 12.5mg tablets.
Remember that Category A changes are compared with November, Category M changes are compared with September.
